U.S. Preparing For 1956 Olympics

By CONNIE RYAN,
U.F. Foreign Sperie Editor
NEW YORK (UP)). — American Olympic officials already are looking ahead to the 1956 Meibourne Games and are trying to work out ways to strengthen the U.S.A. in the sports in which it is we X.

Russia very nearly beat the U.S. in the overall Olympic standings in 1952, and while American officials still stoutly stick to the position that the Games are individual contests and in no way a team competition, they cannot help but be aware that the general public views the Olympics in a nationalistic sense. And in the matter of medals, Russia hested the U.S., taking home 62, while the U.S. got 51. However, America has no worries about men's track and field, swinning, boxing, basketball, weight-lifting or yachting. It always does well in these sports, and expects to be as good as usual in 1956. But it needs great improvement in gymnastics and women's track and field if it is to stay ahead of Russia. Melbourne Games and are try-women, irenically, who gave the Russians the heavy lead early in the games — a lead the U.S. men later overcame."

In gymnastics, Russian women scored 20-1/2 points and Russian men 92-1/2 points in unofficial scoring. The U.S.Ascored nothing. After the Games, the U.S. Olympic Gymnastic Committee asked its athletes what they thought should be done.

It was because of him and his influence upon the officers that phas censorship was reimposed by Nagib. This caution may well be the keynote of the present.

JERUSALEM ART NOTES

Chinese Pottery at Bezalel

A SMALL but exquisite collection of recently acquired thinese Pottery is exhibited at the Bezalei Museum. The most impressive piece is a fine Tang horse: the cavalier perfectly at ease, silting his perfectly collected steed. Looking at those 1,500 year old equestrian statues in ministure, one always wonders whether the potters of the Tang Empire knew about the Farthenon horses or, at least, about the bronze horses of Reman statuary.

Two clay statuettes of Tang dancers are so marvellously arrosted in full movement, one could readily believe that in the dead master with their swaying grace. There is good Celadon and two beautiful Ginger pots: messgreen and silvery iridescent. The clay figure of a kind of sphinx with circular tail is unique. One is tempted to assume that this quaint object is the fragmentary handle of a large ritual bowl, fashioned by the crafty Chisese into an inde-number of youths from oriental communities, so as to be true to the composition of Jerusalem's populace. When Bet. Hanoar started enrolling members hack iz 1900, the well-dressed well-fed younger generation from the Rehavin quarter were the first to come. But these, mostly children of the centre's sponsors and their friends, were soon joined by wild, unkempt youngsters from the neighbourhood. It was an interesting experiment to mix the two groups, the more so as the only difficulties were encountered in the age groups over 14. After some quarrels, the different elements got used to one another to the point of voluntarily teaming up for dances and games.

Some special problems of the centre were stressed by Miss Florence Schrout, the centre's young assecutive director who holds a Master's degree from Columbia University's School of Social Work. First, there is the cultural pattern of the criental communities, which keeps the crisis at homa, discourages their education and en-

Conquering Shyness.

Last, not least, the old-fashioned gray stone building houses groups that, for lack of a better name, are known as accial groups. These are the actual testing grounds, the laboratory in which the youngsters new to the centre first most, wear off their rough edges and begin the process of socialization. It is here that a shy youth is encouraged to ask a girl for the next dance, possibly for the first time in his life. And it is here that the groups become smaller, start informal discussions on various subjects and eventually crystalline into study or play circles. Thus in the most natural, if slow way, that girls and boys find the courage to do something shout their hitherto dormant interests. It is selection by affinity.

the cultural pattern of the criental communities, which keeps the crisis at home, discourages their education and encourages their education and encourages early marriages. At first, Miss Schrout says, the girls came only in crowds and could not think of themselves as individuals. Social intercourse, even at the age of 23, had not been sufficiently developed. When brought to face a group, the girls, and the boys as well, displayed a typically adolescent self-consciousness.

Another problem was a feeling of guilt most of the youngsters had about the desire to enjoy themselves. The majority thought it would make a better impression if they registered for a lot of heavy intellectual courses. This proved too difficult, however, and they dropped out one by one. Then they began
